

NRHS RAILCAMP

2025 Programs Application Package

Welcome to the National Railway Historical Society (NRHS) RailCamp 2025 Program! The NRHS and our partner organizations are very proud of this unique introduction to railroad operations which has hosted hundreds of young people over the last 25 years. The following pages include all the details of applying to attend one of the two programs in 2023.

RailCamp East: June 22 – June 28, 2025
Headquartered at the University of Delaware in Newark, DE and
RailCamp Northwest: June 22 – June 28, 2025
Headquartered at the University of Puget Sound in Tacoma, WA

Each camp will offer hands-on experiences for young people interested in railroading, its colorful history, and promising future. Frequent postings of camp events and news will be posted on www.NRHS.com and the RailCamp Facebook page.

To complete an application, select the camp you wish to attend (only one, please) and fill out ALL the appropriate documentation. Both the prospective camper and the parents have items to sign and the potential camper has a bit of writing to do. Please use your computer to complete the application.

The Reference Release forms must be signed and given to your references. Make a copy of each and send them with the application. Two attempts will be made to contact your references. If calls are not returned you will need to supply another reference. A financial assistance form is included which may be used if a need exists, otherwise it need not be returned.

Camp Tuition is $1,575. Scholarships are available from several sources, including the NRHS and many of its chapters and other organizations. See Page 12 for financial assistance.

Our staff will review the applications and request any further information needed. You may submit applications immediately, but the FINAL DEADLINE for submissions is April 1, 2025. Don't wait too long – places fill up fast. RailCamp East will accept 24 campers, and RailCamp Northwest will accept 12 campers. You will be notified of acceptance as soon as possible, but not later than April 30, 2025.

When your application materials are complete and signed by all parties, return them by email to railcampnrhs@yahoo.com.

PURPOSE OF RAILCAMP

RailCamp is an educational experience for young people who have an interest in railroads and railroading. It gives them an appreciation of what railroads have meant to the history, development and economy of our country and how revolutionary technical changes in modern railroading affect today's business. Occupations in the rail industry are unique and this opportunity introduces these young people to the motivation and commitment necessary to pursue a railroad career. The intent is to inspire them to become involved with the many aspects of railroading; hobby, volunteering, working for an historical museum or tourist operation or a career in the rail industry. It encourages them to engage in the future of railroads.

RAILCAMP ADMISSION POLICY

APPLICATION

All individuals interested in participation in RailCamp must complete the application provided by the NRHS.

Additionally, the Applicant's parent(s) must complete an affidavit attesting to the accuracy of the information on the application and grant permission for the NRHS to contact any references listed on the application.

The NRHS will accept RailCamp Applicants after a complete review of the application.

SCHOLARSHIPS

RailCamp participants may receive scholarships. The NRHS provides a limited number of scholarships to participants based on financial need. The number of scholarships varies from year to year depending on contributions from NRHS members, Chapters and other sources.

NRHS Chapters and Interested Entities may sponsor campers. The Chapters or Interested Entities grant the sponsorship on an individual basis to applicants who meet all the admission criteria established by the NRHS. Chapters or Interested Entities may add criteria of their own so long as those criteria are non-discriminatory.

Final acceptance of a candidate is solely at the discretion of the RailCamp Committee. The NRHS, at its sole discretion, may share the name of individual Applicants with sponsors, and may share the sources of sponsorships with individual Applicants.

APPLICATION PROCESS

RailCamp Management will publish a specific schedule for each year. This schedule will only apply to the RailCamp Programs being offered in that year.

ADMISSION CRITERIA

The NRHS will decide on an Applicant based on the information provided in the application, the affidavit submitted by the parent and any information the NRHS obtains from the references. The NRHS does not discriminate against any Applicant in its admission process based on race, religious affiliation or lack thereof, national origin, sexual orientation, gender, or disability. Membership in NRHS is not a prerequisite to attend RailCamp.

RailCamp is a learning program requiring participation using operating railroads that need focused attention and the ability to follow instructions without oversight.

RailCamp is open to persons aged 14 – 18 who will enter ninth, tenth, eleventh, twelfth grade, or have graduated from high school in the year of the camp

Preference will be given to first time attendees, but RailCamp management, at its sole discretion, may admit an applicant who attended a previous RailCamp.

NOTIFICATION and FINAL TUITION PAYMENT

Upon notification of an award of a position in the RailCamp program, the Applicant has thirty (30) days to submit the balance of the tuition for the respective RailCamp program. If an Applicant fails to meet this requirement, the NRHS may award the position to another Applicant.

REFUNDS

If an Applicant is accepted for RailCamp and he/she is unable to attend due to a family emergency, the NRHS will refund the tuition paid upon submission of requested documentation.

In the event the NRHS cancels a session of RailCamp, the NRHS will refund any tuition paid by the Applicant or Sponsor.

Should an Applicant be prevented from attending a RailCamp program because of war, natural disaster, or some other emergency not involving the immediate family, the NRHS will refund any tuition paid by the Applicant or Sponsor.

In the event an Applicant accepted for RailCamp cannot attend a RailCamp program for a reason this policy does not anticipate, the RailCamp management, in its sole discretion, may review the circumstances and refund any tuition or portion thereof as it deems appropriate.

RailCamp Participation Requirements

The NRHS RailCamp program is not the average summer camp. It is intended to provide the participants with a realistic experience dealing with the activities railroad personnel experience every day. Certain government regulations, company policies and procedures govern these activities and it is critical that each attendee be aware of and capable of observing them.

The NRHS RailCamp Program is designed to further an individual's knowledge of railroading's contribution to the history of our country by providing a hands-on experience of what it was like to operate a railroad transportation system prior to the technological advances that have automated much of that system and reduced its labor force. RailCamp also addresses present day railroading and some aspects of future railroading with activities during the week. In these instances, attendees will meet and work with experienced railroad employees. The RailCamp Experience includes learning the skills of railroading as they were (and in some cases, still are) practiced with actual hands-on participation. A major key to success for any student is to show they can participate in team activities. This is accomplished by actual participation in train operations and facilities maintenance. Attendees should come away with new appreciation of what it took, and in many ways, still takes, to be a railroader.

The nature of railroad operations requires close cooperation and understanding among many groups of skilled persons. This means each person needs adequate verbal communication skills as well as an agreement on several non-verbal signals and commands to be understood by all participants. The Federal Railway Administration (FRA) and the several State Public Utilities Commissions (PUC) oversee standards of communications and safety rules, not only for currently operating common-carrier rail systems in the United States, but for railroads at many museums and tourist operations which are maintained as operating historic artifacts. Thus, many RailCamp activities are subject to FRA and state regulations, and those regulations must be followed explicitly.

RailCamp participation requires certain skills and a level of performance that will make the experience safe, meaningful and yet a fun learning experience for all. All RailCamp participants must be able to understand and follow directions. They must be able to focus to lectures, discussions and activities while sitting or standing for long periods in various settings which may contain many distractions. They must be able to understand verbal communications as well as several non-verbal signals and commands. They must be able to climb and lift heavy objects. RailCamp participants will get dirty and possibly perform assigned duties in wet or very hot weather. RailCamp teaches railroad heritage and practice through an active, physical, multi-day experience participating in the operation and maintenance of both modern and historic equipment and facilities.

Physically, attendees can expect to be exposed to loud noises such as locomotive horns and power equipment as well as complex activity including moving railroad trains at any time. Attendees should be comfortable lifting at least 25 pounds. Most locomotives and many other facilities are accessed by ladders with safety grabs requiring the use of both hands. Volunteers cannot provide special personal services for any camper. Federal and State safety codes for railroads require certain functions of all working personnel including volunteers; all participants must be capable of learning and then implementing these rules and procedures to insure the safety of all participants just as real railroaders do.

Safety and other necessary equipment required to participate in railroad activities will be issued by RailCamp. Such equipment includes but is not limited to earplugs, hard hats, gloves and safety goggles. Once provided, attendees are expected to have this equipment with them and available at the appropriate times after notification by staff. Other equipment will be provided if required for a specific task at the time the task is to be performed. Clothing and appropriate footwear are the responsibility of the attendees. You will receive a separate NRHS document with guidelines for what kind and quantity of clothing to bring.

An attendee who is unable or unwilling to deal with the restrictions as outlined here or demonstrates special emotional needs after a period of time in camp may be required to leave the camp. An attendee causing disruptions which inhibit the experience of RailCamp for other attendees or pose safety risks for themselves or the group will likewise be sent home. A camper being sent home is the responsibility of the parents. A return ticket must be arranged, or parents can pick-up the camper before the next day's activities begin at 7:00 am. Remember; while RailCamp is intended to be fun and educational, a camper who cannot interact successfully with the group, maintain situational awareness and observe the necessary rules of safety while doing so becomes a serious danger not only to himself/herself but to others as well. Railroading requires team effort; each attendee is part of the team.

A NOTE ABOUT PARENTAL INVOLVEMENT - Parents are welcome to visit the venue in which RailCamp is held but may not participate in RailCamp activities or assist a camper with any camp activity, including meals and evening social functions. Attendees are expected to stay in the provided housing facilities with their peers. The group interaction must not be circumvented for safety and other reasons; this is part of the camp objectives. We learn that safety is a group activity and each attendee's attention should be confined to the group and its activities during RailCamp week. Parental interference cannot be tolerated. Safety requires everyone's full and undivided attention.

PARENT QUESTIONNAIRE

SAFETY OF YOUR CHILD AND OTHER CAMPERS IS OUR PRIMARY CONCERN.

The NRHS does not discriminate based on race, religious affiliation or lack thereof, national origin, sexual orientation, gender, or disabilities. RailCamp can make some reasonable accommodations to meet the needs of attendees, but the staff needs to know the extent of any disability and the program modifications that a special needs child may require. RailCamp needs your full and complete responses to the following questions:

Does your child have special needs? Yes No

If yes, please describe:

In addition to the "special needs" category, are there any other issues of which we need to be aware (sleepwalking, anxiety attacks, anger or frustration situations, etc.)? Yes No

If yes, please describe:

Does your child have Individualized Education Plan or Educational Service Plan? Yes No

If yes, would you be willing to discuss it with RailCamp management? Yes No

Does your child have any special dietary needs? Yes No

If yes, please describe:

Does your child have any allergies, either food born or environmental? Yes No

If yes, please describe:

Does your child have sensitivity to sudden loud noises and/or bright flashing lights? Yes No

If yes to either situation, please describe:

Is your child's weight and height within normal limits for a child of his/her age? Yes No
